Assistant/Associate Professor of Supply Chain Management

The University of Wisconsin Oshkosh, College of Business invites applications for a tenure-track Supply Chain Management position, starting September 1, 2015.

Requirements: Candidates must possess a Ph.D. (or be ABD) in Supply Chain Management, Operations Management, or Production & Operations Management from an AACSB-accredited College of Business. The review of candidates will focus on their research, teaching, and work experience. Evaluation of research skills will focus on general skills and publication record. Evaluation of teaching skills will focus on course design and in-class effectiveness. Candidates must have at least 2 years of related Supply Chain Management industry experience.

Preferences include the following: Demonstrated ability to advise/mentor students; willingness/ability to participate in faculty governance; demonstrated ability to engage with the business community; demonstrated effectiveness writing and submitting research grant proposals; teaching interests compatible with department needs; Lean experience in a manufacturing or a service organization; APICS or ISM certification.

The normal teaching responsibility is 9 credits during the fall and spring semesters for 18 credits/year. Each semester has 14 class weeks, and a 6-week break exists between fall and spring semesters. Professional development support is available for research, presenting papers at conferences, and for attending off-campus workshops.

The College of Business offers AACSB-accredited programs at the undergraduate and graduate levels. MBA courses typically meet once per week in the evenings, and some courses are held online. The College of Business has recently moved into a new building (Sage Hall). The university’s homepage is: www.uwosh.edu. Oshkosh is a family-oriented, scenic lakeside community with a population of about 60,000. Oshkosh and the surrounding area (the Fox Valley) are home to many well-known businesses.

Application Deadline

Will begin reviewing applications Nov. 26, 2014, and continue until the position is filled. Submissions received by Nov. 26, 2014, are guaranteed to be reviewed completely.
